

Philosophy Statement: The Byram Hills mission endeavors to create productive and responsible citizens and leaders of the twenty-first century; in helping the district achieve its mission, the English department has integrated modern technology into the framework of its work with students. With the recent proliferation of artificial intelligence comes challenges and complications for the teaching of reading and writing. If students are to be successful graduates of Byram Hills High School, they will need to understand the benefits and limitations of artificial intelligence. Ultimately, the department aims to help students understand how to use AI tools responsibly while also providing students with the requisite skills to be independent thinkers, readers, and writers.

Acceptable	Requires Permission	Unacceptable
Research & Writing - Retrieving basic information, brainstorming topics, and locating resources and/or citation information - Editing for spelling, grammar, and usage errors - Creating writing prompts Reading - Defining complex vocabulary, difficult concepts, or translating text - Suggesting options for IR Presentations - Providing audio-visual aids Test Preparation - Creating study guides	Research & Writing - Providing substantive feedback that suggests improvements to arguments and/or analysis - Generating sentence-starters - Evaluating the credibility or bias of sources - Providing a general outline Reading - Summarizing classroom texts - Identifying significant quotations - Leveling reading material	Plagiarizing - Using output generated by AI without proper attribution (i.e. citing) - Replacing the act of reading and/or critical thinking - Communicating with AI during an assessment - Synthesizing ideas into writing that doesn't represent a student's thinking - Generating creative writing (i.e. poetry, play, etc.) in lieu of original work - Using AI to make wholesale changes to writing - Producing personal writing (i.e. electronic journals)

Note: Regardless of whether students choose to use AI or not, all incorporation of AI should be cited according to MLA guidelines—all information and sources gathered should be verified for accuracy.

Sample Prompts using PREP (Prompt, Role, Explicit, Parameters):

Students are Permitted to Use the Following Prompts:

Research and Writing

- Retrieving Basic Information
 - I am interested in researching _____, and I need to gather some basic information to help me understand the topic better. Act as a research assistant. Provide a brief overview of what _____ is, including its causes, effects, and some current statistics. Make sure the information is clear and concise, suitable for a high school student. Limit the overview to 300 words and provide citations for any statistics mentioned.
- Brainstorming Topics
 - I am interested in writing an essay on _____, but I'm not sure what specific topic to choose. Take on the role of an academic advisor. Provide a list of five possible topics that are relevant, along with a brief description of each. The descriptions should highlight why each issue is significant and could make for a compelling essay topic. Keep each description under 100 words.
- Locating Resources and/or Citation Information
 - I need to find credible resources for my paper on _____. Act as a research librarian. Identify three academic articles or studies that provide different perspectives on this topic. Include the full citation for each resource in MLA format. Ensure the resources are published within the last five years and are available through public databases or online journals.
- Editing for Spelling, Grammar, and Usage Errors
 - I have written an essay on _____, and I need help with proofreading. Serve as a professional editor. Review the essay for any spelling, grammar, or usage errors. Provide corrected sentences where necessary and explain why the changes were made. Focus only on mechanical errors, not on content or argumentation. Make sure the feedback is clear and instructive.
- Creating Writing Prompts
 - I want to develop some writing prompts for my classmates to help them explore _____. Assume the role of an English teacher. Create three detailed writing prompts that encourage deep analysis of _____. Each prompt should include a specific area of focus and should encourage at least 300 words of response.

Sample Prompts using PREP (Prompt, Role, Explicit, Parameters):

- Sample Opposite-Argument Brainstorm
 - Good morning. I'm a ninth-grade student about to embark on a research project called the opposite-argument paper. As part of the project, I will be asked to explore an issue that has opposing viewpoints, identifying credible sources to help me understand the related arguments. I'm really interested in the topic of _____. Can you give me a list of possible topics to explore? After each topic, include a question that will help me understand the opposing viewpoints; for example, you could say something like "Should the United States grant asylum to victims of political persecution?" Limit your responses to 10 different topics, and provide me with links for my initial research. Be sure to include links that will give me information on both sides of the argument. Include more than one link per topic, if necessary. Please restrict the links to newspaper articles that have been published within the last calendar year. Thank you.

Reading

- Defining Complex Vocabulary, Difficult Concepts, or Translating Text
 - I am struggling to understand the concept of _____ as it relates to literature. Take on the role of a tutor. Explain the concept of _____ in simple terms and provide an example of how it is used in a literary context, such as in the works of [author's name]. Keep the explanation under 200 words and use accessible language that a high school student would understand.
- Suggesting Options for Independent Reading (IR)
 - I'm looking for a book to read independently that will challenge me and align with my interest in _____. Serve as a librarian or book club advisor. Suggest three books that fit within the _____ genre, with a brief description of each. Explain why each book would be a good fit for an independent reading project. Make sure the suggestions are suitable for a high school reader and are books that have been published in the last 10 years.

Presentations

- Providing Audio-Visual Aids
 - I need to create a presentation on _____ and would like to include some visual aids. Act as a multimedia consultant. Recommend three types of visual aids (e.g., infographics, maps, timelines) that would effectively convey _____. Include a brief explanation of how each visual aid would enhance the presentation. Ensure the recommendations are suitable for a 10-minute presentation to a high school audience.

Sample Prompts using PREP (Prompt, Role, Explicit, Parameters):

Test Preparation

- Creating Study Guides
 - I'm preparing for a test on _____ and need a study guide to help me review. Take on the role of a study skills coach. Create a detailed study guide that includes [key themes, character analysis, important quotes, and a summary of each act]. The guide should be structured in a way that is easy to follow. Limit the study guide to 1,000 words, ensuring it covers the most critical elements needed for a high school test.
-

The Following Prompts Require Teacher Permission:

Research & Writing

- Providing Substantive Feedback That Suggests Improvements to Arguments and/or Analysis
 - I've written a draft of an argumentative essay on _____, but I'm not sure if my arguments are strong enough. Act as a writing coach. Provide detailed feedback on the strength of my arguments, suggesting specific areas where I can improve my reasoning or provide additional evidence. Highlight any logical fallacies or weak points in the analysis. Focus on the content and logic of the essay, and avoid making any changes to the writing style or grammar.
- Generating Sentence-Starters
 - I'm having trouble starting my essay on the symbolism in _____. Serve as a writing mentor. Provide three different sentence starters that could help me begin my essay. Each sentence starter should introduce a different aspect of the symbolism in the novel. Keep each sentence starter concise but impactful, and ensure they are varied enough to give me different options for how to begin.
- Evaluating the Credibility or Bias of Sources
 - I found several articles on _____, but I'm not sure which ones are credible. Take on the role of a media literacy expert. Evaluate the credibility and potential bias of three sources I provide. Offer a brief explanation of the reliability of each source, considering factors such as the author's qualifications, the publication, and any evidence of bias. Keep each evaluation under 100 words, and focus on helping me determine which sources are trustworthy for an academic paper.

Sample Prompts using PREP (Prompt, Role, Explicit, Parameters):

- Providing a General Outline
 - I'm struggling to organize my ideas for an essay on _____. Act as an essay planner. Create a general outline for the essay, including an introduction, three main points with subpoints, and a conclusion. The outline should help me structure my thoughts and ensure my essay is coherent. Make sure the outline is flexible enough for me to adapt, but detailed enough to give clear direction.

Reading

- Summarizing Classroom Texts
 - I need a summary of the main events in _____. Take on the role of a literature tutor. Provide a concise summary of the key events that take place in _____. Include important quotes and explain their significance. Keep the summary under 200 words and focus on the most critical moments that are likely to be discussed in class.
- Identifying Significant Quotations
 - I'm writing an essay on the theme of _____ in _____ and need help identifying key quotations. Serve as a literary analyst. Identify three significant quotations from _____ that relate to the theme of _____. For each quote, explain its context in the story and its relevance to the theme. Each explanation should be around 50 words, providing enough detail to understand why the quote is important.
- Leveling Reading Material
 - I'm interested in reading more about _____, but I found texts that are not at a high school reading level. Act as a literacy expert. Revise the texts I've found so that they are appropriate for a high school reader. Provide a brief description of each text. Ensure the revised texts are both informative and engaging, suitable for someone in the 9th to 12th grade. Ask me for the link to the first text and wait for my response. Then provide me an appropriately summarized version of the text. After each summary, ask me for another text and repeat the process.